

FREE LEADERSHIP PROGRAM FOR YOUR TEEN!

Sponsored by The California National Guard and the National Teen Leadership Program

The California National Guard (CNG) Drug Demand Reduction (DDR) program will be sponsoring 30 high school-age students to NTLP this summer, 2006!

What is NTLP? High energy, leadership-based fun and excitement! Seminars include: High-powered motivational speakers, workshops on relevant topics of interest to teens, small group sessions focusing on problem-solving and decision-making skills, a talent show, dance, and so much more! Teens develop skills and friendships during these three days that last long after the camp has ended.

Check out the NTLP web site at: www.teenleader.org!

How can I attend?

Sponsored attendance is extremely limited!

Only 30 students throughout the entire state of California will be selected to attend for free.

Students must be in grades 9th-12th, a dependent of a family member serving with the California National Guard and write an essay on "Why I Choose To Live a Drug-Free Life."

There is no GPA requirement to attend and students do not have to be in positions of leadership at their school. If more than 30 essays are received, winners will be selected based on date of submission and quality of content. Essays should be long enough to get the point across, but no longer than one page.

This year NTLP will be held at:

California State University, Sacramento,
August 4 - 6, 2006.

If you would like to receive formation on submitting an essay to attend NTLP in 2006, please email your interest to:

National Teen Leadership Program

Or feel free to call:
916-941-3886 or 800-550-1950
for more information.

Do this now! If we do not receive sufficient interest from Guard families the offer will be extended to other youth groups supported by the California National Guard.

This was a great experience. It was good to come back for a third year!
